

Miracle Comes to Cripple Creek Theater for Holidays

An all-new and spirited holiday show will debut at Cripple Creek's historic Butte Theatre Nov. 28.

Miracle on Bennett Avenue is a re-imagining of the classic Christmas story, Miracle on 34th Street. The new show is written by Chris Sorensen.

In the TATC version, Vice President-elect Teddy Roosevelt visits Cripple Creek just before Christmas. Unfortunately, he is injured while taking a tour of the mines and stumbles into the hills, his memory lost. He's aided by young Joe Anderson, who works for the wicked Widow Wylie at Wylie Mercantile. Joe gets this memory-deprived stranger a job as the Wylie Mercantile Santa Claus. And that's when the fun begins!

With Christmas tunes, a heart-warming story and two (count that, two) villains, Miracle on Bennett Avenue will send you into the Christmas holiday with song and laughter in your heart.

And don't miss Thin Air Theatre Company's New Year's Eve party. New Years Eve will include the show as well as hors d'œuvres, party favors, and snacks, free glass of champagne at midnight, a chance to meet the actors, and a little DJ'd music with some dancing.

This show runs through Friday, Nov.28 through Dec. 31 at the Butte at 139 E. Bennett Ave. Show times are: Thursday 7 p.m.; Friday 7 p.m.; Saturday 1 & 7 p.m.; Sunday 1 p.m. Tickets are $11.75 adults/$9.75 seniors/$7.75 children*
